THIS IS THE EGGMAN. HE WAS CREATED IN A MOMENT OF BOREDOM. NORMALLY HE LIVES ONLY ON E-MAIL. BUT NICOLE LIKES HIM AND WANTED HIM TO SPLIT WITH HER ZINE. HE THOUGHT THAT WAS A GOOD IDEA. HE SAID "THANK YOU NICOLE." AND HERE HE IS. HE PICKED HIS SPECIALIST THINGS TO SHOW TO YOU. AND HE INVITED SOME FRIENDS ALONG WHO AREN'T ABLE TO JOIN HIM IN E-MAIL.

DO YOU LIKE HIM? WOULD YOU LIKE TO SEE AGAIN? IF YOU WOULD AND YOU HAVE E-MAIL, THEN WRITE HIS GOOD FRIEND MARTHA AT MARST71+@PITT.EDU SHE CAN PUT YOU ON HIS LIST AND THEN YOU'LL GET VISITS FROM HIM. WOULDN'T THAT BE NICE?

welcome to martha eggman! i really like this split with her; hopefully it will become a permanent thing, and 'hey!' to richard & deon sativa.

recently i was told i am 'weak and immature' because i don't practice casual sex and drug use; i need to 'toughen up' 'vuz that's what punk is about. i know what i think of his argument. anyone else got input? i'm considering an article on it next issue.

- if you want a 'zine distro. catalog, drop me a line, so far chicago, ~~oooo~~ long island, and pittsburgh are in it. it's better then nothing. i'd like to add on more cities....

take care. see you next issue.

When i was little i had this book with the charlie brown characters-happiness is a warm puppy. i don't know if i got it then but looking back on it i know that it was the truest story. happiness is a warm puppy, a purring Cat, a fuzzy Stuffed Animal and a Blankie.
it's a bright Sunny Day in the fall, warm enough to take off your coat but keep your Mittens on. happiness is in a friendly Smile, a flower, catching a big fat Snowflake on your tongue as it falls through the dark sky. Wool, twinkly Lights, and cheap Mycha. a phone Call, a Bug, a Quarter, just a Smell or a Song, a Trough that hurts, the noise of the Ocean while soft sand Squishes under your toes. happiness comes during a Drive as the road curves, as you step onto the ice rink and Don't fall. 12 unread andrew Messages and a real Letter. you fly on a Swing and Made in a fountain, meet Someone new. doing what you want to do and seeing someone who somehow is Beautiful.
it's in a Dr. Guess book, a Wave, an Eraser shaped like the Statue of Liberty, and a Shower.
open your Eyes, your Ears, and your Genes.

i got a man with a plan says nuts to damn / a token drove simple with a beer in his hand / nine out of ten pretending to understand/i've got a flag, got my honor / i got a washing to do / i got a couple of kids and a case of

Hi Judas & Crew --

I enjoyed your 'zine and have some comments, suggestion, etc.:

1) It was cool to see a review of the 7 Seconds show that I put on at Metropol. That was only the second show I've done at Metropol and luckily was a success despite that we needed over 250 people just to break even [see a]. By the way, the first band was Pop Defect - they are on the same label as Paper Tulips (Flipside) [see b].

2) I realize that you may be as much as eight years younger than me and thus lack perspective [see c], but try to see from my point of view that although you enjoy some punk bands [see d], you have also made some naive, "mainstream alternative" [see e] statements in your 'zine, such as:

"I like 104.7 a lot compared to what is offered in Chicago." [see f] Puh-lease! Not only does Chicago have two commercial-alternative stations, they also have at least three college stations (WNUR, WZRD, WHPK) [see g] and one high school station (WNTH) which kick ass. Chicago is one of the coolest places to live in North America period [see h] - the band scene is enormous, only the weather sucks [see i].

So that you can be more hip and underground and indie/punk [see j] and feel superior to stupid MTV - watching morons your age (like I do) [see k], while in Pittsburgh you should listen to our wonderful college radio stations which play all indies and all kinds of obscure lovely music [see l] - WPTS University of Pittsburgh 92.1 FM and WRCT Carnegie Mellon 88.3 FM, [see m]. Hey, why not start a campus station at Chatham - now that would be punk rock! [see n] Don't ever listen to "The Revolution" - put in a tape instead!!!! [see o] "I listen mainly to punk, ska, Oll, HC, and old industrial (like Sheep On Drugs)." Glad yr into the old school punk rock tip, but be carelul when calling something "old industrial." That term rightfully belongs to early 80's groups like Throbbing Gristle, Cabaret Voltaire, and Einsturzende Neubauten, [see p] not dance music poseurs [see q] like Sheep On Drugs (or NIN, Ministry [see r], etc.).

3) Hey, enough criticism. You are doing a good zine and that is cool. there are a lot of other zines in the area that come and go, like the ultra-hip punk feminist journal Pawholes [see r] (available at Paul's CDs and Slacker) and Fukter Faxion [see s].

But some are worse than others. There are so many ways to blame others for the world's problems. There are so many ways to make a leap of klerkegacadian proportions into the sphere of infinite hatred and stupidity. Sometimes I think we're all half-way there. But if we are, it doesn't matter, because luckily (?) our motivations are nullified by our apathy and ignorance. Some of us, however, have made it all the way, have become Nazis, Cilan Rookers, Bosnian Serbs, Louis Farrakhan wannabes, hardcore pro-lifers (forgive me, I had to stick that in) and any other assortment of delusional people. Most of these people live in infinite hatred and/or ignorance and/or self-righteousness and/or stupidity, and from this they define their identity and purpose. I think it takes a coward to live this way; it takes a bunch of silly little brats who need to learn the rules of the playground.

I'm really just a little boy in a sick, sick city. Day in and day out, I watch the shuttles carry people up the hill. I watch 12,000 lives go by, simple lives, with so many things taken for granted. We hit the bars on Thursday nights, frat houses on the weekends; we wonder what the cafe is serving tonight. We have all this petty anxiety, all our little faux social complications. We had the OJ trial for, what, nine months, was it? I was walking to campus the other day, and I saw a line of little kids on a field trip walking in formation down the sidewalk. Now, forgive me for getting a little teary-eyed here, but I really think we were all a lot cooler when we were little. I also think that we were a lot stronger. Back then we didn't need to find scapegoats; we didn't need to retaliate. Back then we didn't need organizations to have friends. We didn't need to get fucked up every night to have fun. Really, we are a little less than children now.

I really feel a little out of my league. I'm a little boy in a sick, sick city, and maybe I'm just going to sit down and wait for something to happen. Time will go by. Then one day the little kids all get blown up by some fascist's time bomb in their day-core center. And we still go to Zelda's every Thursday night and the frat houses on the weekends, and this all just strikes me as kind of bizarre.

Still the Man says, "This is the point: this is the manifest bed for the scraping, dirty little secret reason for the gathering consequence; what else is there to do but go outside. look around, look around." Look Around.

a: you could have done more publicity. a friend's friend is on the 7 seconds mailer and knew about it. he told her, and so on. otherwise, i would have been sitting at home drinking coffee and MUDDing.

b: that's nice. they still suck.

c: watch where you are treading, buddy. i have your home address.

d: i'm a poser and i don't care. i just like to make people stare.

e: why should i care what you think? now, am i immature and belligerent?

f: first, when i wrote that, 104.7 did not have DJ's which was enough for me to forgive all of their greatest sins. the only decent DJ's i have ever heard were lance and stoli on Q101. second, did you spend a couple weeks in chicago? who the hell are you to judge, bucko? live there for seventeen years then try to tell me you didn't get sick of it.

g: couldn't get them at my house.

h: I KNOW THAT!!!! too bad my family lives there.

i: sounds like fighting words to me.....

j: i am none of those things.

k: uhh...i'll leave that one alone.

l: when they play the fabulous pink dots, i'm going back to 104.7.

m: one of them has a cool 80's music show. it scared me 'cuz every song they played i had the corresponding tape.

n: see d.

o: i do listen to a lot of tapes and cd's. currently, ABC's abracadabra is being spun the most - just ask my roommate.

p: then they can come get it. if i heard it when i first got into punk, ska, and industrial, then it's old. i think the bands would be happy that someone my age even knows who they are.

q: so, you have never been to a dance club?

r: "stigmata" was the first song my mom told me to turn off 'cuz it was inappropriate. so there! i can honestly say that i have never liked NIN, even when trent wasn't cool.

s: i wrote about itin my last issue. like it a lot.

STAR WARS

Luke Skywalker, Anti-Stud

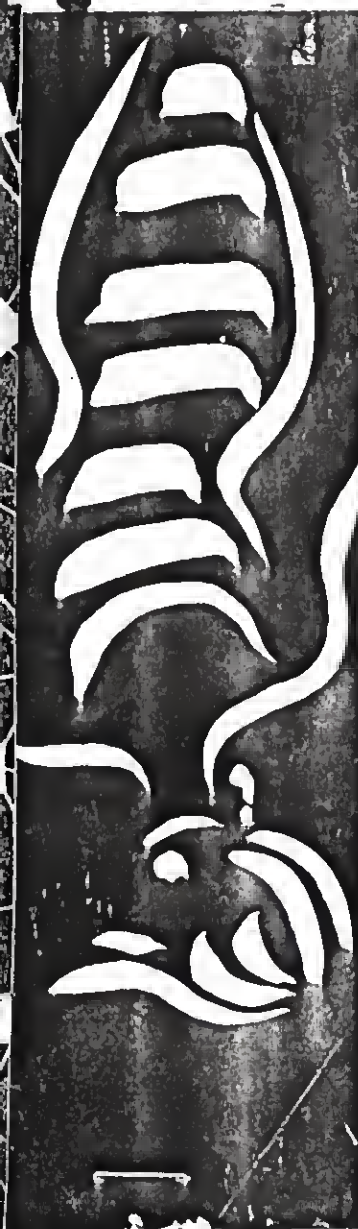

I feel pretty sure that I can say that STAR WARS is one of the best sci-fi, action, adventure movies ever made without any complaints. Unless it's that STAR WARS is the best. From the opening line "A long, long time ago in a galaxy far, far away..." to the final wink of Han Solo, receiving a smile from Princess Leia.

There are many things that make STAR WARS great and there is one thing that makes it so unique. Luke Skywalker, future Jedi Knight is, quite simply, a geek. He's whiny "But Uncle Owen..." Fun to him is new power converters. He lives in a cave, where he cleans 'droids (when they are not tricking him). He refuses the offer of adventure at first, wanting to keep his responsibilities at home. He is anything but muscular.

I think that much of the appeal of STAR WARS is that this geeky, pubescent farm-boy is the hero. None of this stops him from saving the princess and what will become the New Republic, while setting the evil Empire back in physical power and reputation. He is great, talented, courageous, a geek, and the subliminal reason behind the love of STAR WARS by millions of people.

We're All Geeks in some way or another.
Some choose to Acknowledge it and some choose to deny it.
That's fine; Just as long as you embrace your TRUE self and not forget it.

"Watch me Unravel"

by Miki Howald, Jmhst57 + @pitt.edu

There are some articles of clothing which are so intimate, they reach deeper than a layer of skin, deeper than blood and bones, and touch the soul. There are some articles of clothing which embody a person, and everything for which that person stands. It could be a hat, a pair of shoes, or a shirt. To smell it would be to inhale his essence; touching it would be like laying my hands my hands across his fiery mind, scorching my senses, quenching my curiosity and desire.

There is a boy and a sweater I have seen. My mind and eyes wrapping tendrils of desire around his image, drawing it closer to me. I have followed him for months, not knowing why I was so drawn to him. I would watch his sweater, silently, as he stood in front of me. Horizontal stripes, altering green-blue-green-blue. I noticed the small pieces of fuzz embedded in the polyester/cotton self. His blonde hairs were resting softly on the shoulders and back, isolated strands held there by static electricity.

I want to touch that sweater, run my hands down the bands of color. I want to put it on. Pull him over my head, settle my arms into him, hang on my shoulders, fall gently to my hips. I want to wear this sweater and bask in him; sweater fibers bonding me to him, feeding me his breath.

Green-blue-green-blue. I want it so much, just to learn from him from wrapping the sweater around me, burying my face in it, inhaling his essence, understanding. In the end it's always understanding.

For now I follow soundlessly, searching throughout he crowds to find him, dreaming of wearing his sweater, wondering if I'll ever talk to him.

We Girls Can Do Anything, Right Barbie!

Almost every time I see a commercial or ad for a new toy for girls I want to cringe. Somehow, as we approach the 21st century with new meanings to the words First Lady and Princess, toys for girls are getting more and more close-minded; lacking encouragement and purpose. Bride Surprise. Little Miss Make-up. Board games like HeartThrob and Girl Talk. But thankfully this is not the case with all toys or new versions of old favorites. Case in point: Barbie. She encourages girls, helping them grow up into motivated, active, confident, and self-reliant.

Yes, I know, you are about to jump into a tirade about Barbie's unrealistic body proportions and the fact that all but 2 of the dresses she owns are pink. But hear me out. I wrote my senior-year research paper on how Barbie was a catalyst behind the feminist movements of the 60's, 70's, and 80's.

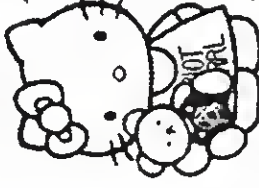

Barbie is a powerful, positive role model for little girls. She doesn't sit around her house all day, applying makeup, watching soaps, and cooking for Ken. She is an athlete. She skis, roller blades, rides horses, is a lifeguard, an aerobics instructor, camps, hikes, and jogs. She has many careers, making them exciting to little girls-- she's a vet, and executive, a doctor, an astronaut, rock star, and police officer.. She's been in the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force. In 1992 she ran for President (and I've heard she's considering 1996). She received 3 times more votes than Ross Perot. (OK, vote/purchase, same thing).

In this world of Disney Mouie and Power Ranger plots to act out Barbie still requires imagination.. Sure her clothes and playsets start the ideas behind the make-believe but nothing happens unless the child uses their imagination to create Barbie-Land. Barbie-Land is really quite a nice place.. Barbie is the star and planted in girls is the idea of self-reliance. Think about it. If Barbie ever lowered herself to marrying Mr. Typical Male, Ken, and then, due to

GIRL ♥ CAN SAVE THE

VARIOUS BANDS

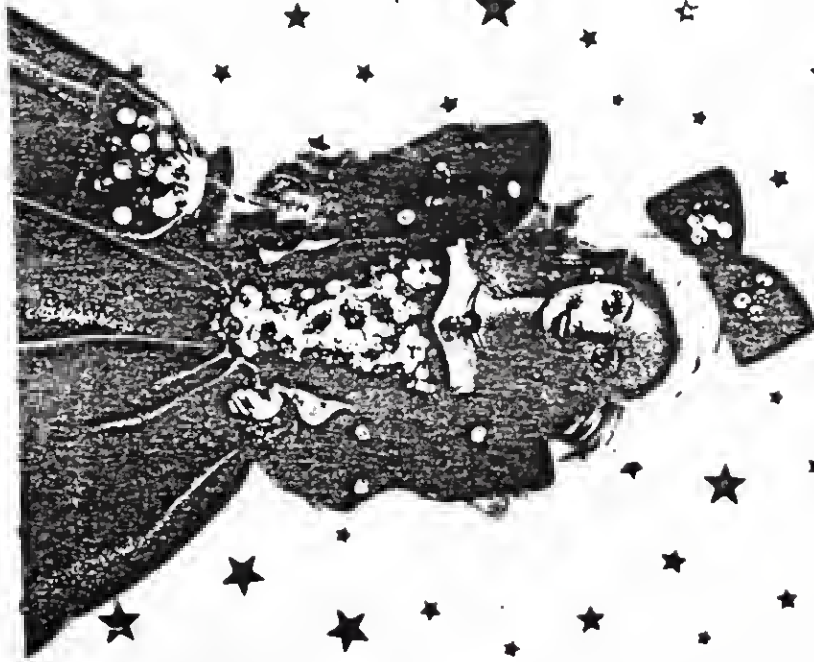

don't have contacts... don't know if they still even exist the kabes: probably what WAX sounded like five years ago. would have bought a demo if they had one.

the splits: they look like op. ivy. even sound like op. ivy. have a whacked version of 'sweet home alabama and covered that 'bondage up yours!' song that i hear all over the place but no one knows who the band is.

the molles: most organized noisier punk band i've heard in ~~the~~ awhile.

the creepz: fucking awesome chick singer. grrrrr...

irreconcilable differences they were to go to divorce, she'd have to pay him alimony. She's the one with the job. It's her house, her car, her camper, boat, pool, and ice cream parlor. For Barbie, Ken is simply just another accessory that goes great with her Bob Mackie Evening gown. To be all intellectual and quote my paper, "Play with Barbie gives girls a chance to have a world in which women will always be dominant over men. As they get older, girls who remember play like this are not taken advantage of as easily, simply because they are female, nor do they feel their life is pointless because they don't have a boyfriend."

What it all comes down to is you aren't the only girl whose Barbie owned the World or stuck down adversaries with karate chops, while throwing Ken in a minor role. If he was lucky-- otherwise the shoe box. And you definitely won't be the last.

welfare

the format isn't perfect 'wz pagemaker is the program from hell, get over it, fuckos.

definitely not a glamorous subject, but into everyone's life a little maghem must fall. this started as a poll of how teens thought the welfare system should be updated. i asked around at my job. a lady from washington, PA tid me about awoman in her city who had six children. she recently married but is on welfare supporting all eight of them. everyone has heard horror stories like this. everyone i asked seem to give me more of them. basically, they were slugging women, and that bothers me even if it is totally true. i believe these women have serious problems, not limited to finances. i talked to crystal (virgo's right to bitch 'zine).

judas (that's me): what do you recommend to rehab welfare?

crystal: idealistic or realistic?

j: both.

c: idealistically, put a two year max on it. give them money to cover general expense sand food. give them job training, like at a technical school, then help them get a job.

j: "help" them or "make" them?

c: a job is mandatory, help them with the training. once they are above subsistence level, their taxes should go back into welfare. give them a six month probation period at the end of the two years, and if they still don't get a job then, too bad.

j: what if women have children while on welfare?

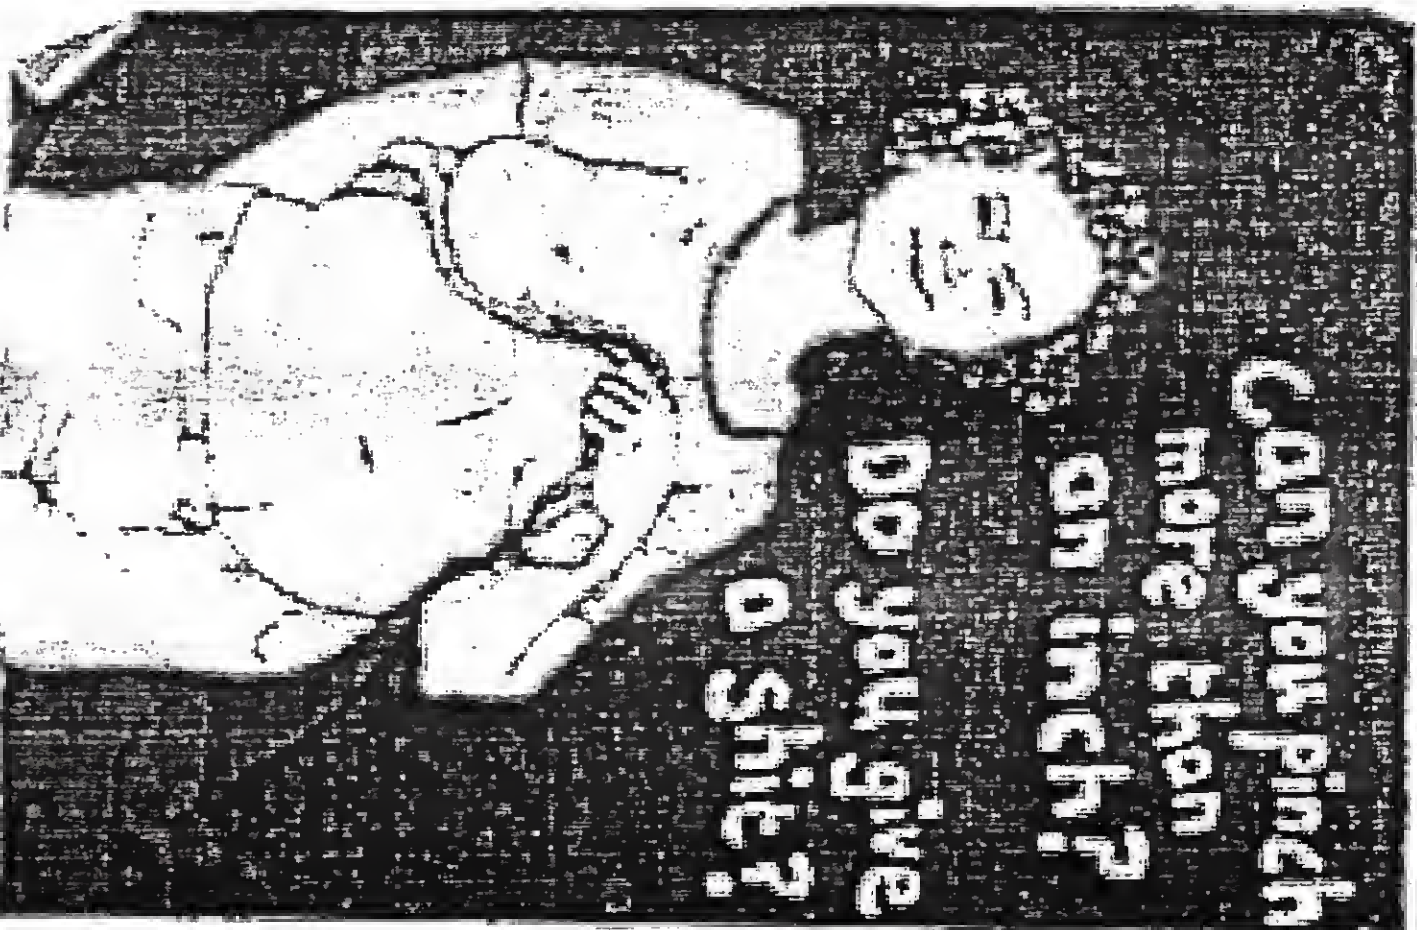

c: if she isn't pregnant at start of the two years, then she is on her own for that kid.

j: what about husbands of legitimate babies?

c: this is where we have a little fun. any father without a job and isn't currently on the two year system will be given six months probation where they have to get a job. any father found negligent will be put in jail for three

11/11/94 the system was a mess the shit. so i hope whoever made it will drop me a letter and not suit me to hell.

my head, but i like it.

j: now ~~that's~~ real ismally.

c: i really don't see anything like this happening 'cuz there are too many bleeding heart liberals crying, "oh poor mother!" they are trying to please al of the people al of the time and don't have the balls to say "get off the fucking couch."

next i spoke to a woman in her late forties. she has carpal tunnel syndrome and is diabetic. her husband is brain damaged as the result of a car accident. both consider themselves disabled. she was on wifare (as in recieveing a monthly check) when her two children were born, but now the family recieves only medicare.

j: what did you think of welfare?

susie (name changed): i hated it. i want to get off as soon as possible. i only want insurance through social security. i was denied the first time because i wasn't that disabled. i had surgery on my arms and it still isn't any better, so i am applying again. i am starting my own sewing business and eventually want to leave the system all together. i expect to receiue disability benefits, and with sewing, we will be o.k.

j: what do you think should be changed about it?

s: the caseworkers are so rude. they act like they are giving money out of their own pocket. i remember one, i ended up taking her to court seural times. i was suing her for harassment. she was so rude to me. when my daughter turned eighteen, she was has to apply for her own medicare benefits. she had to get a job, but she was leaving for college in a few weeks. by the time they trained er, she would leave. they refused to listen to me. she had to move out of our house so the rest of te family could still have insurance.
the social workers should be interviewed and tested.

j: tested?

s: yeah. psychologically tested so they aren't racist or have problems with poor people. get workers that respect their clients.

j: explain to me why she had to move?

s: you have to account for every penny that you get here. if i get money for my birthday, then i have to keep record of where it comes from and where it goes. i was afraid they would take away my daughter's college financial aid.

i: if it was awarded to her and you didn't lie on the forms, why would it be taken away?

s: that's just how the system works. i know how it works. i: what about women who have babies while on welfare? s: (sighs) that saddens me. here they don't pay extra for extra babies, so women kill and abandon their babies.

i: if you don't know both sides of the story, then you don't know all of your own.' - someone on back of a book i still think welfare is a great way to suck a country dry.

i'm not opposed to it in general, only in its current form. people should be required to work or go to school, but maybe it's not such a good idea to limit the number of children women on welfare can have, overall, i must admit to be disgusted by society. makes have been fucking it up very well for a long time. how about giving women a go?

noon-ish ailecia, james, ken, miss rachel, liana, and i are sitting in the columbus civic center drinking more mediocre coffee. this is a really nice mall. i see the irony in the fact that major social roars are occurring right outside its front door and these people can only think about holiday returns. i wonder how many people will show up. there are hundreds of police in full riot gear. humans have come so far, but really have not gone anywhere.

7pm i'm in the van heading back to pittsburgh. the rally was great. there were about 15 kkk hicks standing on the city hall steps. and several hundred protesters. a few nazis came into our "pen." they picked fights with people and were appropriately damaged. what a pity (heavy sarcasm). miss rachel and i got locked in the civic center. we went to warm up and pee. she bought cookies, i got carob covered raisins. we tried to leave and police had blocked the doors. we had to leave through the back, which took awhile to find 'cuz the friggin' mall rent-a-cop would not redirect us. while rachel and i were trying to figure out where to go, some african-american teens asked what happened. the rent-a-geek blew them off, so i told them about the rally. they looked at me like i had ten heads. then they decided to go shopping. it really scared me. if my peers are so apathetic, then what the hell is going to happen to us? at the rally, most of the crowd was caucasian. that was nice 'cuz it shows the kkk has opposition among their "ranks." at the same time, the fact there were few minorities bugged me. i feel like i am wasting my time if people are more willing to ignore then resist. i am really tired. i am empowered and depressed at the same time. i really need a shower. i wish i had left some 'zines around ohio. hopefully, i will never have to roadtrip for this reason again. someday humans will rise above bigotry and hatred.

if anyone has vice squad or the wrecks music or info. id like to have it. i'm considering adding a 'wanted' section to the 'zine and distro. catalog. ~~page~~ (tree, of course). if i get enough responses i'll throw it in.

when you watch jeopardy do you end up feeling as stupid as she looks? i don't, but i'm pre-med. v. for those of you that do, i always put a quiz in my boost your ego. if read my questions, would be a weird place. somehow, i forgot to do a quiz last issue so i made a good one for this month. it's lines from 80's and movies. if a bunch of you get together, you'll be able to figure them out. they are european releases or if you call or e-mail me your answers, i'll give you a prize. * * * * *

person rents a car can drive it. technically. our van was stolen. we convinced the cop to let ken (blindsight's drummer [?]?) call lenny to explain. they were in the cop's car for 20 minutes. we figured either kenny was being beaten or giving head. the cop let us go 'cuz our mission was admirable. the ticket was only $60. with taxes and fees, it was $125. i will never speed. too bloody expensive.

2.30am 6 jan 1996. i smell bad. we saw snapcase, despair. and some shitty band with a name like one united body. they sucked, so it doesn't matter. the singer was slagging every subculture except sXe hardcore, but his shirt preached unity. asshole. despair was awesome. i got a sticker. they won't have a cd for a month. so far every snapcase tape i've heard sucks. but they were cool live. i liked it. i danced. i met a couple of skins. they are letting all 14 of us could stay at their squat. fuckin' awesome. i am excited. a night with the skins and punks! just like chicago.

4am we are riding around ohio. i think. or west virginia. anyway, want to know why we aren't curled in our sleeping bags snoozing amongst ohio's subculture? at the squat, there were two punks screwing in their own bedroom with the door shut. they even stopped when we showed up to be polite. a girl green hair. and a tipsy guy in a hawaiian shirt. there was cat food on the floor (cats are supposed to eat at the table, i guess). plus, the floor was wet from our boots. one of our ranks felt "uncomfortable" with them. so, hell, it must be better to stay up all night in the friggin' van. dumb bitch. what really pisses me off was that she slagged us chatham ladies 'cuz we aren't "hardcore." but a chick with green hair and a g.g. allin shirt made her cringe. ugh! i will take this with a grain, and not hold any animosity towards her. but deep down, i think she is silly. and dave is a fool for thinking a hotel would let 14 kids stay in one room.

10.34am sitting in a seats outlet. it is a field of sofas. we are amazed by it. we would like to stay here and chill awhile. i'm amazed they haven't kicked us out, yet. would you let a 8 dirty, drugged looking teens lounge in your home furnishings department? i doubt it. i've got greasy mall fries and half a cup of bad joe in my gut. we are too tired to sleep. god damn, life is good. i've had an awesome time so far. i would do it all over again. we are rehashing inside jokes from the past night, such as: is your head shaved? a 16mm and texas toast, please* i don't have any...soup* why was their bathtub and kitchen so clean? $.25 cents a mile!!!! i move the motion that we sell her for gas money "four-four-

5 jan 1996, 5.45 pm i'm standing in pitt union with a great pile of bags in front of me. i assume these bags belong to some sXe people that i will soon be acquainted with. dave was supposed to be here with our van at 5pm. we are going to protest a kkk rally in columbus. once a year i reserve a weekend to make fun of rednecks, and blessed be, that's this weekend. i have done rallies before in the midwest. i wonder if the east coast will be different. hey! dave is here.

7pm i'm in the van. fourteen people. at least we are cozy. so far, the score is murphy: 2/us: 0. originally, there were 13 people. seems that chris went potty while we were loading the van we got to dave's house to drop off his car then realized someone was absent. chris' roommate, jaime, said, "i thought chris was here, but not." chris was sitting on the steps of pitt union coatless and dejected. it was hilarious. about 45 minutes outside of pittsburgh the cops came. ted was doing 77 in 65. oops! the real problem was that the van was rented by lenny (blindsight's singer), but he was in pittsburgh. only the idle wilds & sonic tonics luciano's. 16

december 1995. cost $5.

idle wilds are not my style but they still sounded o.k. to me. they mine the sterile alternative pop stream rather well. it wasn't overladen nor kische. it won't make me get up and dance but it's not offensive, either. their singer reminds me of donnic vic (cuniff z'nuff-old beetles knock off) whom allegedly sounds like elvis costello, but i never heard the relation. their music was more dinosaur jr. and matthew sweet (in his least disgusting mode), and live. venus accompanied me to the show, and she hated them but thought they played well. but she likes dance hall crashers, so who is she to judge? sonic tonics were typical surf music without the typical singer, at least that is what i'm told. the few surf bands that i've heard have deep throated singers, much like sonic tonics. everyone agrees that is rare. you decide what is going on. i don't like surf that much, but it was cool for dancing.
 idle wilds: 220 lacey st./ west chester, pa/ 19382. they have a single. sonic tonics: no contact 'cuz they wouldn't give me one.

yes, those cornell freaks were out of line. they should know better than to pull the stunt they did, i mean, aren't they at an 'ivy league' school? <snicker> i knew it was only a matter of time until a retaliation list was circulated.

for those of you who don't know: 4 cornell pigs (i'm not saying all men are pigs, or even that all cornell men are pigs, just that 4 pigs from cornell did the following) posted a list on the 'net titled "why women shouldn't have freedom of speech" that included lines like "nothing shall come out of her mouth, swallow bitch!" it was immediately forwarded to several women's college's with messages to 'mail bomb the assholes.' the idiots guys had put their names and e-mail addresses on the list. i know all women reading this will understand when i say, "only men would do something so stupid." just use plain common sense, if you're going to attack an oppressed group don't sign your name unless you're ready to deal with death threats! assholes. the forward reached me in 2 days. it had already been to most of mount holyoke, cornell, berkely, and many other schools in between. these women were not kidding around. now, i pass their legacy on to you, my darlings :~)
